As Torrents in Summer Edward Elgar (1857-1934)

Come Ready and See Me Richard Hundley (b. 1931)

Prší, Prší Slovak folk/arr. Miroslav Hroněk
It's raining, raining, pouring down. Don't shut the door my dear, my soul, on us. When I was going from Susan's, my spurs jingled and jangled and then grey eyes were crying. St. John, I beg you, please, I must have that girl, even though my father and mother object. I must have that girl.<sup>2</sup>

~Chorus~

Si l'on doit prendre Claude Gervaise (1540-1583)
If one gains a benefit for offending, I have deserved great punishment. But, if virtue deserves a reward, payment is due for my affection. Whoever would accept the affliction of being parted without reason from his lady? If such a fate befell my soul, I would commit a sin to be better treated for since from my good deeds I receive nothing but blame. From sins will come the benefit I deserve.<sup>3</sup>

In pace in idipsum Thomas Tallis (1505-1585)
In peace and into the same I shall sleep and rest. If I give slumber to my eyes and to my eyelids drowsiness, I shall sleep and rest. Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.<sup>4</sup>

Good night, my fine love. Sleep well, my child. All the angels in the beautiful heavens are guarding you. The nightingale sings from the bush in the clear moonlight. The moon shines in your window; it peeks into your quiet chamber. The moon shines as you slumber there, but I must go on alone.<sup>5</sup>
