Dans les Chantiers

arr. Mark Sirett (b. 1952)

Look, winter has arrived: the rivers are frozen. Now is the time to go to the woods, to eat lard and peas. In the lumber camps we'll spend the winter!

"I wish to be paid in full for the time I've given."

When the wealthy owner claims he's bankrupt, he sends you back to eat crusts.

When you return to your father's home, and to see your mother once more, the jolly man greets you at your door; the jolly woman piles food on your plate.

"Ah, hello then, my dear child: are you bringing us a lot of money?"

"To the devil with these camps! Never in my lifetime will I return there!"

No more will we go to the lumber camp! ¹

Livrons-Nous à l'Allégresse

Christoph Willibald von Gluck (1714-1787)

Let us give ourselves over to joy: no more ills, no more sadness. O moment full of sweetness!

Admète will bring again, to his people who adore him, both glory and good fortune. ²
